

Learning Difficulties Conference

Relevance and Revelations: Responding to Learning Difficulties

16-17 September 2021 Brisbane

Call for Papers and Workshops

In 2021 this biennial conference will be providing evidence-based practice to assist classroom teachers, home tutors and support/inclusion personnel in supporting students who experience difficulties with learning.

We are calling for submissions for research papers or practical workshops on all aspects of meeting the learning needs of students in a variety of settings. This includes (but is not limited to) effective teaching practices and assessment in reading, writing, spelling, mathematics and other learning areas at both primary and secondary levels of schooling as well as the use of technology, student engagement, whole school approaches, working collaboratively with colleagues, and models of inclusion in a mainstream classroom.

Speaker Incentives

Presenters of papers and workshops will receive one free registration to the 2-day conference. Please note that where there are multiple presenters, each additional presenter will pay a reduced registration fee. This fee will include lunches and morning teas. No other incentives are offered.

Disclaimer

Please note that the following disclaimer will accompany conference registrations and papers.

The speakers are solely liable for the content of their presentation (including complementary materials). The publishing of this material by the Joint Conference Committee does not represent or imply that the three organisations, involved in managing the conference, in any way endorse or recommend any particular professional services or products offered by the speaker or an affiliated company. Those attending the conference should not act upon any information or advice that may be given during the conference without independent verification or advice.
